Year: 2021

Topic: Role of RRB in Socio-economic dev. of Rural mass

Participants: 62

Date: 28-01-2021

Activity Report:

The dept of Commerce has organized a departmental Seminar under the chairmanship of Dr Chinmayee Senapati, Reader in Commerce, Organizing Secretary of the Seminar. Dr B C K Jena, Reader in Commerce, A B College Balasunderpur, Bhubaneswar attended the Seminar as the Resource Person & delivered a key-note. About 62 no. of Students of our Dept. attended the Seminar out of which 04 no. of Students presented their Paper. All other departmental faculty members also presented their Paper on this topic.

Abstract of the Topic:

The importance of the rural banking in the economic development of a Country can not be over looked. As Gandhi said "Real India lives on village" and village economy is the backbone of Indian Economy. Without the development of the rural economy, the objective of economic Planning cannot be achieved. The main goal of establishing Regional Rural Banks (RRBs) in India is to provide credit to the rural people who are not economically strong enough, especially the small and marginal farmers, artisans, agricultural laborers and even small entrepreneurs.
