SEMINAR ABSTRACT

TOPIC:- "Influence of pesticides on children's health & environment"

YEAR :- 2019

DT:- 18/11/2019

Abstract of the Seminar:- "Influence of pesticides on Children's health and environment"

Pesticides are widely used, nowadays, during production of food. Farmers use pesticides to control the growth of weeds and prevent crop damage by insects, rodents and molds. After harvest, they are used to increase the storage life and prevent spoilage. Pesticides may also be used on animal farms to control insect-pests. Sometimes, small amount of pesticides used in these ways, remains in or on foods which is known as pesticide residues. Pesticide residues are a public health concern and have been linked to a range of diseases and disorders. To avoid the contamination of food with pesticides, farmers should use alternative methods like integrated pest management (IPM), crop rotation or organic farming. Consumers should also consume organic food products to escape from the harmful effects of pesticides.
